Let's Explore the History Behind the LB-ELA Corridor

Each month we will be sharing more on Metro's plan to invest in transportation-related improvements throughout the Long Beach-East Los Angeles Corridor that provide safe, quality travel options for moving people and goods.

Metro has partnered with diverse community and regional stakeholders along this important corridor and is working on an investment plan that leverages about $700 million in sales tax revenue to obtain additional state and federal funding that will help build transportation projects and programs that are needed in the communities between Long Beach and East LA.

Stay tuned to learn more about Metro's efforts of partnering with vital community and regional stakeholders to create the Task Force (TF), Community Leadership Committee (CLC), and other working groups that have been key in shaping the new vision for mobility that advances equity and sustainability along the corridor.
